HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.

THE Wholesale Agent for the sale of the above Medicines begs to call the attention of the public to the following case of cure of a malady to which the inhabitants of this colony seem peculiarly liable, namely—the loss of their fingers from poisonous wounds:—

To Mr. S. Emanuel, Agent for Holloway's Pills and Ointment, Goulburn.

Sir,—I beg to inform you, for the benefit of the public, of the following cure effected on me by the use of the above Pills and Ointment. I was killing a pig and was bit in the finger, and was very bad, and under four doctors, who wanted to cut my hand off; and when I would not consent, I could get no cure. I was advised to use Holloway's Pills and Ointment, and am happy to say, after using them for one month, I am entirely cured.

CHARLES HUGGINS.

CAUTION!—None are Genuine unless the words "Holloway's Pills and Ointment, London," are engraved on the Government Stamp, pasted on every Pot and Box, with the same words woven in the water-mark of the books of direction wrapped round the medicines.

Should unprincipled venders recommend parties asking for Holloway's Pills and Ointment not to buy them, but to take something else in their stead, they do so only for the purpose of getting a greater profit by what they wish them to purchase.

ROWLAND'S KALYDOR is a preparation of unparalleled efficiency in improving and beautifying the skin and complexion, preserving them from every vicissitude of the weather; and completely eradicating all Cutaneous Eruptions, Freckles, and Discolourations; and ROWLAND'S ODONTO, or PEARL DENTIFRICE, is alike invaluable for its beautifying and preservative effect on the teeth and gums.

"Sworn to no Master, of no Sect am I."

In England "a barrister of five years' standing," has been declared by high authority to be one of the most parliamentarily favoured animals in existence. No matter what commission is to be issued, what court is to be constituted, what subject is to be enquired into, barristers of five years' standing are the parties who are to have honours, aye, and pay too, "thrust upon them." This system was introduced by the Whigs, who issued so many commissions that the witty and irreverend Sydney Smith declared that it was a fair assumption that every man met in society was a commissioner unless he proved to the contrary. The new Electoral Bill seeks to introduce this system into the colony, by rendering it necessary that the revision of the Electoral Lists shall be performed by barristers. Mr. C. H. Chambers, with a nice perception of the claims of his own branch of the profession, wishes to have solicitors eligible for some of the pickings, but we would venture to suggest that the introduction of new tribunals with paid commissioners is altogether unnecessary. The duty of revising the lists has hitherto been performed by the Benches of Magistrates, and we are not aware that their decisions were ever open to complaint. We know that the Legislature is so far lawyer-ridden that any proposition calculated to benefit the profession is likely to be well received: but we hope the country gentlemen will muster in sufficient numbers to prevent the clauses appointing barristers from being carried, and to substitute in their place, enactments casting the duties upon the magistracy. It will be argued, no doubt, that the magistrates, from not being learned in the law, will be apt to make mistakes; but we question if three or four country gentlemen assembled together to decide upon the qualifications of their neighbours, will not be, on the whole, less likely to err than a couple of junior barristers (not necessarily better lawyers than gentlemen of equal education with themselves), whose object will be to stick as closely as possible to the letter of the law, and disregard its spirit. But even if there should be an occasional mistake made—if in a few districts, half-a-dozen persons should be placed on the electoral list whose claims are doubtful, or, what would be still worse, a few good claims be refused, the evil would be much less than will arise from instituting the proposed tribunals.

November 3rd, 1850.

The weather is now cold, sharp, clear. Winter is coming on us sensibly. Men in great coats and cloaks rush along homewards towards evening, blowing their vapoury breath into the cold air. Ladies have taken to furs, and all the shop windows have burst out with their winter's goods. The nights find thousands at the national concerts, held at the Queen's Theatre. Mr. Macready's farewell performances, at the Adelphi, Olympic, Sadler's Wells, Surry, Strand, Victoria, and Princess's, are also in full play. Certainly no city in the world so abounds with the means of enabling her inhabitants to bear a harsh winter philosophically. The grand national concerts, which I have mentioned above, seem to be another experiment of the musical world on the taste of the middle classes. The promenade concerts of Julien have produced an appetite in the mass of the people for a higher and more intellectual order of music than was ground out of organs and wandering street bands. Although the price of admission to the promenade department of these concerts is only eighteen-pence, the orchestra is the finest ever yet heard in London. Mr. Sims Reeves, who is one of the first tenors of the day, is engaged, as also several very eminent female vocalists. About a week back a chorus of fifty Prussians, men and boys, were imported from the Chapel Royal of the King of Prussia, "with the express permission of His Majesty." Their performances were certainly very fine, and every thing they sang was encored. They seemed to expect this; and on the first night of their appearance (at which I was present) they were evidently prepared with a course of "soft sawder" for John Bull, which sawder was administered with great success. On the second demand for an encore, which took place towards the end of the evening, this vocal half-hundred, instead of repeating the hymn which they had just sung, broke out with Rule Britannia, an unexpected compliment, which brought our honest John into extacies. The singers had no sooner finished Rule Britannia, than some exacting individual roared out for God save the Queen, whereupon these amiable Prussians, to the surprise and delight of the vast assemblage, and without any music before them, broke into our National Anthem, with a taste and vigour which proved that it had been well got up, in the anticipation that it might be called for in this manner. Thousands crowd to the Queen's Theatre every night, and therefore M. Julien is now in the field, bidding, (by means of gigantic placards all over the town), for public patronage of his promenade concerts. Julien is the great original promenader in the musical line, and he is sure to be successful. The efforts which these and other adventurers make, with the object of arresting public attention, are amusing enough. We live in such a world of solicitation and excitement that a quiet and unostentatious advertisement now passes almost without observation. So that Holloway, Moses, Nicol, et id genus, resort to the most ingenius devices for catching the jaded attention of wayfarers. Bills are stuck up all along the insides of omnibusses, and in the most public thoroughfares you are every day met by towering vans plastered over with gigantic lettered bills, enquiring whether you have yet furnished yourself with the registered shirt, or the electro-plated spoons? The crowning effort, however, in this line, I encountered the other day in the neighbourhood of Chelsea. I was about to step over a crossing, when some appearance of surprise in a few faces to my left caused me to look in that direction, when I saw approaching at the rate of about six miles an hour, a procession of some sixteen or twenty apparently animated boxes, in size about four feet long by three feet high, and mounted on wheels. Each box was plastered over with violent recommendations to the public to save 25 per cent., by buying something or other, and was impelled by an invisible man inside each, pushing his feet against a little piece of machinery which communicated with, and turned the wheels. This original idea in the puffing line excited much mirth, and of course, effected what was intended, viz., the drawing all to their doors and windows, as well as attracting the attention of the wayfarers.

November 6.

In this variable,—but upon the whole, by no means undelightful—climate, the weather is seldom uniform for many days together. The usual weather of this month, which came in as described in the last passage, has now turned to close, warm, and what they call "muggy," a word which seems to express much, although I hardly know what it means. The exceeding mildness of the season wonderfully promoted the issue and prosperity of the Guy Fawkeses, which had been manufactured in vast number and variety for publication yesterday. This annual tom-foolery, which had almost sunk into desuetude, has, under the stimulus of Popish impudence, sprung up into a freshness and vivacity equal to any demonstration of the kind since Fawkes or Vaux was arrested amongst his powder and matches in the vaults of the Parliament House. The boys of the town have made a good harvest, their efforts having brought down showers of pence in every direction. The excitement is universal and intense, and apprehensions are entertained by the quiet and well-disposed, that Wiseman will be Haynau'd if he ventures to show out. Most of the French newspapers, the Siecle, the National, the Constitutionnel, and the Journal des Debats seem to sympathise with our British indignation, and scarcely a morning dawns but I see something fresh in these papers upon this all absorbing subject. This shows that even in a Catholic country, the Pope is not regarded with either reverence or respect by the educated and literary classes. The French journalists, as I dare say you are aware, do not enjoy the ease and the freedom of the "We," but under the mild reign of this their last and greatest humbug, Louis Napoleon, are compelled to put their names at the bottom of every article they write. Thus we can see how very numerous the writers in the daily press are, and we know our sympathisers; but I am satisfied that unless French editors live like hermits, and are either more or less than men, they must, under their present system, write under considerable restraint, even as respects public subjects, which is of course just the result intended to be effected.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

SUPREME COURT.—Wednesday.

In Equity. On Appeal.

BAIRD AND OTHERS v. DALLEY AND OTHERS.

Sir Alfred Stephen, C. J., delivered the judgment of the Court in this case as follows.

This was a Creditor's suit; in which the plaintiffs claimed on behalf of themselves, and all other the creditors of George Segerson deceased, against his devisees and executors. Assets were admitted; but it appeared that, in point of fact, the deceased was not indebted to the plaintiffs, unless he were so by reason of his having neglected to pay them certain legacies, and annuities, charged on an estate devised to him, by the will of one Catharine Macleod, and of which he had for years received the profits. The deceased, however, a few months before his death, spoke of the plaintiffs' claims on him as debts; and, in a codicil to his will, he distinctly calls them by that name, and makes provision for their payment.

It was objected, that the bill should have been framed against these defendants, as representatives of Catharine Macleod; so that her creditors might come in and claim—or, that it should have suggested a devastavit by Segerson, and so have a right to make his estate, for that reason, liable. The Primary Judge, however, held that the bill was rightly conceived;—and he decreed the usual reference to the Master, accordingly, for proof of the alleged debts; the other creditors of Segerson having the usual leave, to come in and prove also. From that Decree, the defendants appealed; and the questions discussed before His Honor, were again argued before us, at the Sittings for Appeals in December last—Mr. Broadhurst and Mr. Fisher being for the Appellants, and the Solicitor-General and Mr. Donelly for the Respondents.

We have since considered this case, and the authorities cited: and we are of opinion, that the Decree ought to be upheld. The testator having accepted Catharine Macleod's devise, and enjoyed the rents and profits, was substantially a debtor to the persons, whose annuities and legacies he ought to have paid, and had the means of paying. And his admissions that he was such debtor, in conversation, and by his codicil, were rightly received as evidence of the debts. The Primary Judge properly held, therefore, that Segerson's estate—as such—was liable; and that it was not necessary, as contended on behalf of the defendants, to proceed against them as representing the estate of Macleod. The Appeal is accordingly dismissed; but the costs of it, under the circumstances, may be paid out of the estate.

WALKER AND OTHERS v. MACALISTER.

Sir Alfred Stephen, C.J., delivered the judgment of the Court in this case as follows.

This was a Motion on behalf of the defendant, made during the last Term, to stay all further proceedings in the Action—or to set aside the replication, and let the defendant in to plead a plea to the further maintenance of the action; on the ground that, soon after its commencement, being above six years ago, the parties came to an agreement for its settlement, and that the prosecution of the action notwithstanding that agreement, is in violation of good faith. As ancillary to this application, or in itself a separate motion, in the alternative, a reference was asked to the Prothonotary, to ascertain the sums due under that agreement, in a view to their payment.

The facts, owing chiefly to the very conflicting statements of the defendant, and the managing plaintiff Mr. Thomas Walker, but in part owing to the irregular and loose manner, in which the negociations of the parties appear throughout to have been conducted, cannot on all the points in controversy be ascertained by us. The following, however, are without dispute; and they appear to us to be decisive, so far as the defendant's motion is concerned. The plaintiffs were, for several years before August 1844, the Sydney agents of the defendant, a gentleman of very extensive possessions, apparently, in the interior—and he had been supplied by them, during that period, with goods and money to a greater or less amount, they receiving in return his wool, and other sources of liquidation. Accounts of these transactions, more or less in detail, were furnished to the defendant, in the month of May 1844; but whether previously, and when, is a fact which we cannot determine. Be this as it may, the defendant had at different times between 1840 and 1844 given the plaintiffs four promissory notes, amounting in the whole to £6250. By Mr. Walker it is sworn, that these were respectively for the amounts at the time due:—by the defendant, that they were given in ignorance of what was due, and without reference to the state of the accounts, which he never had at those times been furnished with. The next thing which we find is, a letter from the defendant to the plaintiffs, dated 31st August 1844; in which, without making any observation on the accounts, he asks as a concession that the debt may be reduced to £4000, and four years time be allowed him for payment, with interest—he giving security for such payment, on certain of his sheep and cattle. In October following, the plaintiffs commenced this action. The defendant then, it is said by Mr. Walker, consulted an Accountant; and about the same time negociations for a settlement commenced between the parties.

Of these, the only formal record is a memorandum by the defendant's attorney, dated the 23rd November, in which he undertakes not to sign judgment, for want of a replication to the plea, until after eight days demand of one. On the 26th November, the defendant wrote to the plaintiffs a letter, claiming sundry items of set off. No objection, however, was therein raised to the debit side of the accounts; and part of the credit insisted on, amounting to £1785, was a demand against two of the plaintiffs, arising out of a separate transaction. The defendant had previously alluded to this, in his letter of 31st August. Other items were of matters in expectancy only; as, for instance, calculated proceeds of wool, and wool then ready for delivery. The negociations, whatever they were, terminated in the following correspondence. The defendant signed a letter, bearing date the 22nd January, 1845, (which had been prepared by Mr. Thomas Walker for that purpose, and sent to the defendant through a mutual friend,) in which he distinctly acknowledged the whole debt claimed, with interest; and, in satisfaction of the balance, amounting to £5378, offers the plaintiffs £3600, payable in three years by three equal instalments, secured by a mortgage over 2500 head of cattle, "to be immediately granted" to them. This was followed by a letter signed by the plaintiffs, sent through the same friend, in which they "accept of the offer therein made;" and, in a note enclosing these, Mr. Walker says that, so soon as he receives the defendant's letter, he (Mr. Walker) will give "instructions for the preparation of the mortgage."

From that date, we cannot collect with certainty that anything has been done; excepting always, that £2760 or thereabouts of the agreed composition has been paid. The three years expired, however, in January 1848; at which time, nearly £500 of the previous year's instalment was in arrear, and nothing whatever had been paid of the instalment due in that year. In March 1848, about £800 was paid, leaving £900 still due; and, nothing more having been paid since, with the exception of a small sum of £63 in January 1849, the plaintiffs in November last proceeded with the action. There are conflicting statements as to the mortgage. Mr. Walker does not believe, that any instructions were given to prepare one: and he suggests as a reason, among others, that the defendant was not in a position to give the mortgage. In this, however, it appears clearly that Mr. Walker is mistaken; and the defendant has sworn, that his (the defendant's) solicitor prepared the necessary instrument, and forwarded the draft to the plaintiffs for approval. But, beyond that nothing was done.

It was contended for the defendant, that here was a complete valid and binding substitution, by both parties, of one contract for another; that the agreement to give the mortgage, particularly as the plaintiffs, or one of them, undertook to get it drawn, was equivalent to execution of it; and that the nonpayment of the instalments, at the exact times stipulated, did not affect the question, as the undertaking to pay them was the consideration. In support of these arguments various cases were relied on; but, more particularly, those of Sibree v. Trip, 15 M. and W. 23; Flocton v. Hall, 14 Jurist 571; Good v. Cheesman, 2 B. and Ad. 328; and Evans v. Powis, 1 Exch. R. 607. Now, in deciding the present case, we think that we may put the undertaking to give the mortgage out of the question. Had it been actually executed, or satisfactory evidence been given of merely an offer to execute it, the position of this defendant might have been materially different. We do not say, however, that even then his breach of contract, by nonpayment of the instalments, might not have remitted both parties to their original position; but we are to decide the case, as it stands only. And we find that, by the express terms of his letter of 22 January, the defendant makes the fulfilling of his agreement the consideration of his discharge. The words are—"In the event of my paying to you certain sums, hereinafter mentioned, and thus fulfilling the agreement we have come to, you have consented," &c. Then he says, "In full and complete satisfaction and discharge of which, I now beg to offer to pay you as follows." That is to say, he is to pay in satisfaction. There is, it is true, an agreement; but the payment of the sums therein mentioned, it is distinctly said, is the condition on the plaintiffs' part. There is no stipulation, as to discontinuing the action: no provision is made concerning the costs of it; nothing is said as to the preparation or contents of the mortgage; and the promise to prepare it if it were a promise, which the defendant relies on, was (as already observed) by one of the plaintiffs only, in his individual name, in the note enclosing the agreement. To hold that this action was put an end to, by an arrangement so very loose and incomplete, is we think impossible. Why should these plaintiffs have abandoned a clear and easy remedy, on instruments proving their entire claim, for a right of action on a new and complicated contract, by which they were to forego nearly one half of it? And, if we held that the new arrangement, whatever its effect as to this, was a binding substitution of the one contract for the other, so as to compel the plaintiffs to accept the composition, if paid, in satisfaction of the former, we should still be of the opinion expressed, that the due payment of such composition, at the times stipulated, was essential to the maintenance of that right.

The defendant has failed to show, therefore, any sufficient ground for his application, either to stay the proceedings in this action, or to be let in to plead de novo; and the Rule obtained by him, especially as it charges a violation of good faith, must be discharged with costs. But the plaintiffs are not to get any costs, in respect of the postponement of the argument, at their instance; and the Prothonotary is to disallow, on the taxation, the costs of all such parts of Mr. Walker's affidavit, as he shall find to have been improper or unnecessary—either by reason of its argumentativeness, or its extreme prolixity.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

Thursday.

Before Mr. Justice Therry.

FORGERY.

William Palmer, who had pleaded guilty to an indictment for forgery, on Tuesday last, was called up for judgment. His Honor said, that having looked over the depositions, he could not find the slightest circumstance in the prisoner's favour. He was an exile ticket-of-leave holder, by the Randolph; and, having left the district to which he had been forwarded, had renewed, in Sydney, a career of crime. The depositions taken at the Police Office disclosed a premeditated scheme of the most nefarious character. He had in his possession a cheque-book, printed in the most imposing style; and filled up with sums from £40 to £2, with which, it must be presumed, he had intended to defraud the too ready Sydney shopkeepers. The Attorney-General had only filed one information against the prisoner, although the depositions showed that five or six charges of the same character could have been substantiated against him. The sentence of the Court was that the prisoner be kept at hard labour on the roads or other public works of the colony for five years.

ASSAULT.

Samuel Pearce, indicted for assaulting his wife, was bound over to appear when called upon, himself in £40, and two sureties in £20 each. The Attorney-General said, that in this case, considering the relative position of the parties, he had agreed, at the earnest prayer of the wife, to refrain from pressing the present prosecution; but he desired to have the prisoner bound over, so that this charge should be held, in terrorem, over him.

MANSLAUGHTER.

Henry Milton, who, on the 3rd instant, was committed by the Coroner of Sydney for having performed a surgical operation on one William Lewis, whereby he died (he, the prisoner, not being a duly qualified medical practitioner), was discharged from custody; the Attorney-General stating, that he had every reason to believe that the prisoner had, from sheer humanity, performed the operation; and that it was by no means clear that death had been caused thereby.

CUTTING AND MAIMING ON THE HIGH SEAS.

Mr. Nichols, on the part of Captain Wiles, of the Australian, having requested (and the Attorney-General consenting), this case was remanded until the June Sessions.

FORGERY.

In the matter of Peter Mulvey, charged with forging a series of bills of exchange, to the amount of £6048, and purporting to be accepted by Earls Lansborough and Farnham, the Attorney General moved for his remand until next sessions, on the ground that a material witness was absent.—The prisoner assured his Honor that the Duke of Leinster was a trustee, in regard to £50,400, which was in his name in the Bank of Ireland, and attempted a rambling statement of the affair, which, with some difficulty, was put a stop to.

The Court adjourned until this morning at ten o'clock.

DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

INSOLVENT COURT.

Thursday.

Before W. H. Kerr, Esq., Chief Commissioner of Insolvent Estates.

In the estate of Charles A. Armitage, an adjourned single meeting was held. Claims amounting to £47 8s. 3d. were proved, and the insolvent was examined at considerable length.

In the estate of John Graham, a single meeting was held, but no claims were proved.

MEETINGS TO-DAY.

In the estate of John Gorrick, a single meeting, at half-past 10 o'clock.

In the estate of David G. Jones, an adjourned second meeting, at 11.

In the estate of Robert Gill and Co., a second meeting, at noon.

BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

The first half-yearly meeting of the new Bank was held at their place of business yesterday, Mr. John Thacker, President, in the chair; when the following report and balance sheet were submitted to the consideration of the proprietors.

The Directors have much pleasure in congratulating the Proprietors at this their first half-yearly meeting on the successful establishment of the Bank, and the prosperous state of its affairs.

It will be seen from the accompanying accounts, that after payment of all preliminary expenses connected with the formation of the Company, and also the usual current expenses of the half-year, the net profits of the Bank, exclusive of that derived from Moreton Bay, amount to £12,727 11s. 8d.

Which your Directors propose to appropriate as follows, viz.:—

	£	s.	d.
For payment of a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum	5,540	17	6
Towards the formation of a reserve fund	5,500	0	0
Leaving an unappropriated balance of for the purpose of equalizing future dividends	1,686	14	2
	£12,727	11	8

The profits of the Bank, viewed in connexion with the restrictions to pure banking business imposed by the Act of Incorporation, afford a gratifying evidence of the growing disposition of the mercantile community to support colonial banking institutions, provided they afford equally with their competitors the facilities to trade necessarily required in the great commercial emporium.

It will be gratifying to the Proprietors to learn that the establishment of branches of this Bank at Moreton Bay and Melbourne has been effected under the most favourable circumstances, with every prospect of success. The Moreton Bay Branch has been in operation since the beginning of November last, and that at Melbourne is expected to commence business on the 9th instant. The separate accounts of these establishments are laid on the table for the information of the Proprietors.

The arrangements connected with the formation of these establishments, and the necessity of providing funds in England to meet their drawing operations during the ensuing season, have caused a corresponding portion of the funds of the Bank to be invested in exchange business, and your Directors are happy to add that they have been enabled to make such investments on the most remunerative terms, and that notwithstanding the amount of capital thus profitably invested, the specie held by the Bank on the 31st of March, exclusive of that held at the Branches, amounted to £105,355 7s.

Your Directors have entered into an advantageous arrangement with the old Bank for taking over their outstanding note circulation, which, when completed, will considerably extend the resources of the Bank.

It was intended at the present meeting to propose an extension of the capital of the Bank, by the creation of 1250 new shares, with a view to their allotment at Moreton Bay and Melbourne, and it will be seen by the letter of the Colonial Secretary, appended hereto, that the sanction of the Government to this measure (rendered necessary by the Act of Incorporation,) has been obtained. Owing, however, to an unexpected failure of a remittance from a country proprietor, in payment of his present Bank stock, this meeting cannot, in terms of the Deed of Settlement, proceed to this part of the business for which it is convened: it being necessary, under the 13th Article of the Deed, that before the creation of new shares the original capital should be paid in full. The Directors therefore propose to convene another meeting as soon as this condition shall be accomplished.

Your Directors are happy to state, in conclusion, that tenders have been accepted for the building of the new Banking House, which is now in progress, and that the contracts for the same are to be completed, and the premises ready for occupation, on or before the 1st of July, 1852.

The dividend at the rate of ten per cent. per annum will be payable to the proprietors on application at the Banking House, on and after the 11th instant.

On behalf of the Board of Directors,

JOHN THACKER,
President.

approximation to the truth, still it does not fairly show the increase of our population since the year 1846. The fact appears to be that in that year many houses without the boundary of the town were included in the town, and which has not been the case on the present occasion. After making careful enquiries we are led to believe that about three hundred and fifty persons were in this manner added to the population of the town of Bathurst, and one hundred to Kelso, in the year 1846, consequently the real increase in the number of inhabitants in Bathurst may be reckoned in round numbers at seven hundred; Kelso has remained about stationary. That this is a correct view of the case must be quite apparent to any person who has been resident here for the last five years. As the matter at present stands, the returns show an increase of 369 in Bathurst, and a decrease of 123 in Kelso.

STEALING WEARING APPAREL.—A slippery gentleman named James Holloway, but much better known in Bathurst by the sobriquet of Lankey, and who has on divers occasions been strongly suspected by the police authorities, but from superior cunning and dexterity has managed to disentangle himself from the meshes of the law, was on Monday last committed for trial under the following circumstances. A disturbance took place at Hopgood's public-house, and a man named John Dicker took off his coat and hat, with the intention of displaying his abilities in the boxing line. Holloway, who appeared to have been looking out for a chance, took up the hat and coat and immediately disappeared. The attention of Chief Constable Sherman being attracted to the spot, he, after restoring peace, immediately proceeded to look for Mr. Holloway, whom he shortly after apprehended and lodged in the watch-house. The coat was found where it had been left by the prisoner, and on his being searched at the watch-house, a handkerchief which was in the pocket of the coat when stolen, was found concealed on his person; the hat he wore was also discovered to belong to the pugnacious Mr. Dicker. The prisoner had also a certificate of freedom in his possession belonging to some person named John Pike. It appears he has latterly been roaming about various parts of the country, it having been ascertained that he has been at Goulburn, Gundaroo, and also at Muddee, under the assumed name of James Astam

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

THE LAW OF PATENT.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—I have read with much surprise a letter in your paper of this date, signed "B. C. Rodd," wherein that gentleman gives it—not as his opinion, but as his "impression"—that the Legislature of this colony has power to pass a Law of Patent.

Mr. B. C. Rodd must have very great confidence in his own legal acumen, thus to venture to give an opinion (under the modest guise of an impression) which, is well known to be contrary to the received opinion of the profession in this colony.

But, notwithstanding the high opinion I have always entertained of Mr. Rodd's talents and legal ability, I will venture to differ from him in this matter.

A few years ago a cause was tried in the Supreme Court of Jamaica (Hughes v. Rostron), where the defendant had availed himself of an improvement in the construction of a sugar mill, the invention of the plaintiff. The cause was argued before the highest tribunal in the island, and, in the course of the argument, it was decided that "no local authority in a British settlement or colony had a power to establish any right of patent irrespective of an Act of the Imperial Parliament."

This decision has been confirmed by Sir John Pursell, Chief Justice of the Court of Gibraltar, in a cause lately tried there, and reported in a late number of the Gibraltar Courier, which I received not long since, and have still in my possession. Now I can hardly suppose Mr. B. C. Rodd will have the hardihood to question this authority—an authority for which he must, in common with every well read lawyer, have the most profound respect.

I remain, Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
A BRITISH LAWYER.

Sydney, April 8.

[The Legislature of South Australia has passed two Acts granting patents to individuals, which, so far as that colony is concerned, are, we have no doubt, valid.—EDS.]

LABOUR—IMMIGRATION.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—The Labour question being one in which all colonists are deeply interested, and the absolute necessity of adopting some means for securing a copious immigration to this colony having been universally acknowledged, it only remains for us to decide upon the best and most feasible of the many schemes that have been (or that may be) submitted to the public.

Until lately, squatters were the only material sufferers from the want of labour; but now, the outcry for immigration is becoming more general, and the paucity of the means for carrying it out is beginning to appal the hearts of even the staunchest anti-transportationists in Sydney: it is therefore a subject of such general importance, that I need not apologise for intruding upon the public with a scheme for raising an Immigration Fund of a Million sterling.

To create this fund, it will be necessary—

1st—That all existing laws and regulations relative to the squatting system be repealed.

2nd—That all occupants of crown lands shall be compelled to purchase the whole area of their runs, excepting such portions as Government may deem sufficient to retain for village and other reserves.

3rd—That lessees of crown lands for pastoral purposes shall have the pre-emptive right to purchase their runs—(any time during the term of their lease)—at 14 years' purchase of the yearly rental (i. e. license and assessment.)

4th—That parties requiring new runs shall be compelled to purchase all they require.

5th—That the upset price for new runs shall not exceed 6d. per acre.

On January 1, 1850, the Live Stock depastured on Crown Lands in this (the Middle) District, consisted of—

	Licenses.	Assessment.
Sheep, 6 000,000, requiring 24,000,000 acres, paying per annum	£15,000	£12,500
Cattle and horses 1,500 000, requiring 48,000,000 acres, paying per annum	30,000	18,750
	£45,000	£31,250

being a rental of £76,250 per annum, which, at 14 years' purchase, would amount to £1,067,500;—a sum, if judiciously expended, amply sufficient to bring out a hundred thousand of our suffering countrymen. And long before this sum has been expended, the squatters (having become the bonâ fide proprietors of the soil) will have so much improved their own land that the value of village reserves will be considerably enhanced—the proceeds from the sale of which will be quite enough for a continuance of immigration, should it be required.

Now, let me ask, what would be the result of such a scheme? We should no longer be troubled with that vexatious question of transportation—we should no longer require either convicts or Chinamen—we should have a plentiful supply of free labour—a decent, hard-working, and respectable peasantry. Roads would be made, villages, churches, schools, farms, cotton plantations, and manufactories would spring up all over the interior. Squatters would no longer destroy the fertility of their runs by overstocking (as many no doubt are doing at this present time); it would be their pride, as well as interest to improve, not only the character of their stock, but the quality of their land also. The social and political economy of the odious bush would undergo a complete change, from the present deplorable state of abject semi-barbarism to one of refined and happy prosperity; and New South Wales would then rise to a position of eminence in the scale of nations, which, under the present absurd system of managing the Crown Lands, she can never attain.

Z.

THE IRISH STATE PRISONERS.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—The conduct pursued by Sir William Denison, to wards the Irish Prisoners of State, has been rendered the subject of much misrepresentation in your own and certain of the adjacent colonies. It is not likely that such misrepresentations can be productive of any permanent impression wherever the real facts of the case are patent and capable of ready access. But the unfair prejudice which they are calculated to create in a distant scene of circulation will, I trust, induce your love of fair dealing and impartiality to afford publication to a brief statement of fact as an antidote to fiction.

To any one who contrasts the lenity displayed by the British Government in regard to those prisoners, with that which has hitherto been pursued by even the most democratic governments of Europe, in regard to the same class of offenders, the complaints and oratorical exaggerations to which their fate has given rise, will appear somewhat remarkable. It is admitted by one of their sympathisers, at the last Sydney meeting, that "the exiles played for a very high game—the highest and most dreaded game that was known to Monarchical Governments, a revolution in the social and political institutions of the country." Having played and lost this "highest and most dreaded game" the unsuccessful party has surely little to complain of, at least by comparision, if his failure entails no severer penal consequences than the necessity of observing the regulations annexed to a ticket-of-leave which gives him the free range of a police district in Van Diemen's Land. Being guilty, according to the admission of his warmest supporters, of the highest offence commissible in his character of citizen, he is placed at his very landing from the ship in the self same position which is attainable by other prisoners only at the price of years of compulsory labour, and of good conduct. Surely a party placed in that position, who incurs its temporary forfeiture by the open and repeated violation of the regulations which formed the condition of its tenure, creates the very grievance of which he complains, imposes upon the local authorities the necessity of his own punishment, and becomes the martyr of his own misconduct.

Yet this is the grievance which is now laid at the door of Sir William Denison, as if it was the result of his own private feeling and personal animosity towards unfortunate men, whos errors and their result are deserving of all compassion.

It would be as hard to conceive what possible feeling or interest of Sir William Denison could be advanced or gratified by this alleged voluntary aggravation of misfortune, as it would be to justify the allegation from his public and recorded acts in relation to those prisoners.

It will appear by reference to those Acts, that so far from counteracting the spirit of lenity in which those prisoners have been treated by the home Government, his Excellency has even exceeded the authority of his instructions in his endeavours to ameliorate their condition.

Those instructions distinctly forbad the location of any of the prisoners in the district of Hobart Town or Launceston, or in the same districts with each other. Yet, in contravention of those instructions, Sir William Denison permitted the prisoners O'Doherty and O'Donohoe to reside in the district of Hobart Town, and M'Manus to remove from New Norfolk to Launceston on their representations that their peculiar qualifications could alone assist them in obtaining a livelihood in large communities; and Mitchell to reside with Martin in the district of Bothwell, in consequence of his feeble health.

Surely, these indulgences, granted on the personal responsibility of Sir William Denison, contrary to the positive instruction of the home Government, are strange evidences of "tiger-like ferocity," or the "disposition of a gaoler."

From these facts it will appear that every disposition existed on the part of Sir William Denison to alleviate, as far as possible, the condition of the prisoners of state, even to the departure from the strict line of prescribed duty. There exists, therefore, a strong presumption in favour of the necessity of any measure of an opposite character, which his position may have compelled him at a subsequent period to adopt. Accordingly, it will be found that the order of detention for three months at a convict station was not imposed by the Lieutenant-Governor till the regulation which confined the prisoners to their respective districts had been repeatedly broken by them in the most public manner, in defiance of repeated private and official admonitions—till the seat of Government itself had been rendered the scene of these infractions, under the very eyes of the chief authorities, and till finally they had led to the disturbance of the peace of a township by a street brawl of a violent and turbulent character. It will readily be admitted by every impartial mind such breaches of discipline could not be overlooked by Sir William Denison with a total disregard not only of his own duty but of the peace and safety of the community entrusted to his care.

Under these circumstances, the Lieutenant-Governor was at last compelled to take such steps as were necessary to show that by no portion of the penal population could the orders of the Lieutenant-Governor, with impunity, be openly, repeatedly, and wilfully violated.

The legality of those steps, though it has formed the subject of much declamation, was never impugned by the Supreme Court of the colony, whose judgment in the case of M'Manus proceeded solely upon the special technicalities of the case. The control possessed by the Lieutenant-Governor over prisoners of the Crown, of whatever class, has been exercised by every holder of that office since the first settlement of the colony, and is inseparable from the due maintenance of its public peace and safety. The Lieutenant-Governor, by exercising that authority, pursued a course which is not only of frequent occurrence, but which conveys no imputation whatever upon the ordinary authorities who are aided, not over-ruled, by such a course in the execution of their duties. Thus, in the case of the prisoners in question, the magistrate before whom they were charged for their last infraction of the regulations was empowered only to deal with the individual instance brought to his judicial cognizance. But the Lieutenant-Governor was compelled to take into his consideration the whole accumulated series of similar infraction which had become matters not only of his own official knowledge, but of public notoriety. It is hardly necessary to point out what consequences were likely to ensue from creating a precedent of impunity in this colony for the like breaches of discipline on the part of the penal population, or to remark that the case had at length arisen in which indulgence to the individual would have been injustice to the community.

There will appear upon examination to have been nothing either unusual, illegal, or vindictive, in the order given under these circumstances by Sir William Denison, and so far from that order being carried out with extraordinary severity, the period of detention was reduced in the case of the prisoner O'Doherty from three months to three weeks, and during that period he was kept as separate from the other prisoners as circumstances would admit.

The facts will outvalue a whole wilderness of declamation in determining the spirit and motives which have actuated the conduct of Sir William Denison. It should also be remembered that Mr. Smith O'Brien is at the present moment in the enjoyment of a ticket-of-leave, on the same terms as those held by his fellow-prisoners, an indulgence which his attempted escape from Maria Island did not induce the Lieutenant-Governor to withhold, or even to postpone for a single day, and that the parties who by their share in that attempt subjected themselves to imprisonment, and even transportation, were dealt with by the Local Government of Van Diemen's Land for the lighter offence of a contravention of a local Act, which is only guarded by pecuniary penalties.

These considerations will sufficiently vindicate the character of Sir William Denison from imputations of inhumanity and tyrannical conduct, which can only hope to gain credence where opportunities are wanting for the fair appreciation of Sir William Denison's conduct in the discharge of an elevated but always onerous and frequently painful responsibility, and where distance of object lends its accustomed aid to deception of sight.

I remain, Sir,
Yours, with much respect,
A TASMANIAN READER.

Hobart Town, March 24, 1851.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—In your issue of Friday last I observed a letter signed "Robert B. Minter." I confess that I, amongst others, am at a loss as to its meaning, or as to the cause of its appearance. I certainly did receive a letter from Mr. Minter, dated at Sydney, and a more amusing production never came to my hands. Nay, it was magnanimous. The P.S. runs thus: "I shall return to Windsor on Monday night, and shall be happy then, or subsequently, to receive any explanation of your version of the matter you may deem it convenient to render." He might as well have written a letter to his grandmother. Of course I acknowledged the receipt of the letter.

But to the letter in point. Now, as I cannot possibly see mention made of any paragraph, I would ask to what paragraph has he there alluded? In the next place, Mr. Minter states that he begged me to make a true statement. With regard to his right to ask such a thing, I shall come presently. I beg to state, however, that I see no "incorrectness to correct." As to the plain facts of the case, the matter stands thus: I was standing on the steps of the Court House, with my friend Mr. Minter, when I saw Grainger go into the Court with some papers sticking out of his pocket, and asked him if Grainger was going to present his memorial for his reinstatement? Mr. M. replied "very likely." I then asked him if he knew the fact; to which he replied that he knew nothing about it, or words to that effect. I then asked him if he really thought Grainger had gone into Court for that purpose, to which he replied, "yes, I believe he is." I then went into the Court and saw Grainger present the memorial to the Bench. Upon enquiring of the Bench if the document handed to them by Grainger was his memorial for his reinstatement, I was informed it was. Not a single inhabitant of Pitt Town came forward to say a word in favour of the memorial by them and for them. Mr. Minter stated to the Bench that he was not employed in the matter, but urged a few words on behalf of Grainger, out of charity. I do not suppose the worthy and respectable inhabitants of Pitt Town would expect Mr. M. to appear for them out of charity. With respect to the surmise as to the misinformation of his Worship referred to in Mr. M.'s letter, I think it probable that his Worship who was on the Bench at his, Grainger's, dismissal, would know more about the matter than Mr. M., who stated he knew nothing about it. To conclude—Mr. Minter stated to the Bench that he was not employed. I did not mention his name in my report, and I would therefore ask, 1st. What right had Mr. Minter to ask me to correct a me imagined incorrectness; and, 2nd. What right had he to expect that I should answer such an absurd, juvenile letter, as that of the 20th March, otherwise than as I did, viz., politely acknowledging the receipt of it.

I regret, Gentlemen, to trespass so much upon your valuable space, but trust that with your usual liberality you will insert it.

I remain, Gentlemen,
Yours obediently,
YOUR WINDSOR CORRESPONDENT.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—The British Constitution wisely interposes between the judgment and its infliction—a power to review and to qualify proceedings, which unhappily even in their strict accordance with law, and for that very reason, but too often violate the principles of eternal justice.

The barbarian native now under sentence of death, would assert, could he speak his sentiments, his natural independence of British rule. Apart from the cause of his imprisonment, he is an alien, owing fealty to no chief but him of his own kind, acknowledging allegiance to no other nation. His people discover when they may, the keen suspicion, competition, and vindictiveness of a foe prostrate, but not reconciled; surpassing in their impassioned preference of the wilderness and its freedom, the polished nations of antiquity, and the Indians of the west. Reason does not allow that Peter is punishable as a British subject.

The members of a civilised community are supposed to assent to the laws enacted; a doctrine based in our case on the privilege of representation, and Peter's nation does not possess that privilege. Moreover the laws of a civilised people respond to moralities which do not exist in savage life. Peter may confess that he has offended, but as to the measure of his offence or its atrocity, in our apprehension it is derived from refinements and sympathies of which he has no perception. Reason and justice forbid the severity of the sentence.

An eminent member of our legislature asserted in reference to the aboriginal natives, that there is no morality without religion. The Christian agrees with this dictum, but the philosopher perceives a system of morals in the necessities of association, even among animals considered as irrational. Peter acknowledges these obligations, out of which arises a law, that of self-protection, the only coercive law, the universality of which may be justly assumed, and which in the case of Peter appoints a punishment to restrain not to revenge. Peter must not be hanged.

Yours, &c.,
G.

ELEVATIONS IN YORK PENINSULA.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—In the papers on elevations in York Peninsula, by W. B. C., published in the Herald of Saturday last, I am called upon to explain some discrepancies in my narrative of the expedition to Cape York in 1848.

As I have stated, the memoranda from which the narrative was compiled were very imperfect, therefore inaccuracies as to dates, &c., must necessarily be expected. While I was at Weymouth Bay, I went over my journal and noted down the dates of any interesting occurrence, and the latitude of a few particular places, adding what happened during my stay there from day to day, that I might be able to write to Sydney with as little delay as possible when I arrived at Cape York. I did this to facilitate the writing of my letter. These were the only notes brought to Sydney, so that between these dates (sometimes perhaps five or six days) I had to fill up from memory. As the only object in publishing the narrative was to give the public a plain statement of what happened during the journey as far as I could, I thought the narrative would be better written in the form of a journal;—and it is evident from the passage quoted by W. B. C. in the second paragraph of his remarks, that I never intended the dates to be taken as altogether correct, but only as an approximation, (excepting that part relating to Weymouth Bay, where the dates, I believe, are all correct), which I thought would be sufficient for narrating the common incidents of the journey. In the notes I have taken, I was more explicit in the descriptions and localities of a few of the plants than any thing else; the letter being intended for a friend who was more interested in them.

I will now endeavour to explain the passages alluded to by W. B. C. First, with reference to 20, 21, and 22nd July, we travelled over irregular mountainous country." What I mean here is that our journey lay over very rugged hills and deep gullies. Perhaps the word "mountainous" ought not to have been used, as I did not intend to imply that the land was very high, and perhaps the dates may not be quite correct, but I know that for a few days before the horse was killed by falling down a precipice at our camping place of the 27th July, we had been passing over spurs which ran out from the range crossed by us shortly afterwards, and there might be some difference between the altitude of our camping place and some parts of the journey during the day.

2. "Mr. Kennedy's absence from the camp from 27th June to the 6th July." Mr. Kennedy does not mean here that he was absent altogether during that time. If his journal could be read, it would explain that better than I can. After we left the beach finally, on the 22nd of June, Mr. Kennedy and some others of the party went on in front. We travelled till dark, starting again at day-light. It was the same next day; he was therefore unable to make any observations. We had been so long confined in the swamps of Rockingham Bay, that Mr. Kennedy's sole object was to find his way out of them as soon as possible. I believe it was on the 29th of June, when Mr. Kennedy, with three others, went out to examine the country around, and, I believe, returned on the 1st. They went out again on the 3rd, and perhaps did not return till the 5th; although I have attributed our not starting till the 6th to the illness of the men. With respect to the blacks having been fired upon, W. B. C. says, "Mr. Carron would do right to explain, for the sake of his leader's credit, whether he knows that Mr. Kennedy did really give orders to fire upon them, and that even one was killed." All I can say is, that Mr. Kennedy told me himself, when he returned to the camp (and I would not doubt his word), that they had been compelled to fire at the blacks, and that one was killed. As they had harrassed them so much, and had thrown one spear at them, and others were preparing to throw theirs, the probability was they would have been all speared had they not fired in self-defence. I have the highest respect for W. B. C., and am very sorry he should have made use of such terms as he has respecting this collision with the blacks, which I am satisfied could not be avoided, or it would not have occurred; for, as W. B. C. observes, "Mr. Kennedy was the last man to give a rash order to slaughter even a hostile race." I am confident, from what I have seen, that Mr. Kennedy would do all that he could do to establish friendship with the blacks. I stood by him on the 15th and 16th of September, when, after trying in vain to pacify the natives, we were compelled to fire upon them. Three spears were thrown into our camp on this occasion. Again, after that, in the early part of October, we met with a number of natives who showed themselves hostile towards us. We did our utmost to show them that we were friendly disposed, by offering them presents. They followed us, and were throwing spears at us from all sides. One spear entered the thigh of a horse, and they were then fired at by some of our party and dispersed. Two days after we met with another tribe, who appeared altogether as friendly disposed as the others were hostile;—Several of them running to fetch us water as soon as they understood we wanted some, and filling our cans. W. B. C. says, the natives at Rockingham Bay are reputed to be friendly, and I believe they are generally so; but there are always some in every locality—whose dispositions are not so peaceable, especially among the young men. I believe there was some hostility shown by the natives to a party from the Rattlesnake or Bramble, on Dunk Island, before we left Rockingham Bay; which, perhaps, W. B. C. did not hear of. And it is very likely that some of the worse disposed blacks had separated from the rest, and attacked Mr. Kennedy, in July. I know that Mr. Kennedy would not injure any man, either white or black, without the greatest provocation; but I really cannot see why any man should be required to stretch his generosity toward the blacks so far as to allow them to attack himself and companions with spears and other deadly weapons, with evident intentions of taking their lives, without offering resistance.

I am, Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
W. CARRON.

Cook's River, 7th April.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—When the regulations of 29th March, 1849, were promulgated, a great outcry was raised in various parts of the colony, and at Bathurst and Yass in particular, predictions of colonial ruin and disaster were confidently put forth—the impoverishment of the Land Revenue was pathetically deplored—the total ruin of the agricultural interests anticipated, and the whole regulations denounced as "unconstitutional, unjust, and impolitic."

Without further alluding to the cause of all this clamour, it will be sufficient to notice that the regulations having now been two years in operation, none of the prophecies have, as yet, been fulfilled; on the contrary, the prosperity of that class of persons to whom it was contended this measure would prove especially injurious, seems to have in no way diminished; and I presume it cannot be shown that colonial interests generally have suffered in consequence; the revenue from this source has increased, and will further increase to an extent that, probably, even the framers of these regulations did not at first contemplate. The small agriculturists are now satisfactorily settled, or in a course of fixture in secure tenancies or freeholds, the lawless system of taking gratuitous possession of Crown Lands, and the numerous train of evils and crimes resulting therefrom, are nearly abolished. The Crown Lands, instead of being, as heretofore, open to every marauder who chose to occupy them, are now under the surveillance, for the most part, of authorised proprietors, who will take care that no intrusion on them is permitted with impunity.

Instead, therefore, of these regulations being, as asserted, "unconstitutional, unjust, and impolitic," I believe it is now generally admitted, that experience has proved them to be the most just, liberal, and statesman-like measures that have ever emanated from the Executive Government on the subject of the Waste Lands of the Crown, and that they have eminently fulfilled the purposes for which they were framed.

Your constant reader,
CARCOAR.

10 SPACIOUS ALLOTMENTS, as per Plan, to be on view at the Auctioneer's.
TITLE—A Grant from the Crown.
QUIT-RENT REDEEMED.

Mr. SAMUEL LYONS has been honoured with instructions to dispose of this highly valuable Property, which occupies a most favourable site for Building, being a retired and pleasant spot for residence, The CROWN-STREET ALLOTMENTS
are in a much admired and elevated position, while the whole of them command a delightful view of the Harbour, and are immediately opposite Balmain and the Balmain road.
THE AREA OF THE GRANT IS 1 ACRE AND 8 PERCHES.
being allotment No. 5 of section 92, in the City of Sydney.
The whole frontage to Crown-street is about 160 feet, and the frontage to the Harbour is greater. The depth from Crown-street to the deep water of the Harbour is about 330 feet, and there is a Cottage upon the ground occupied by Mr. Forrest.
The Lots are described on the plan as follow:—
LOT 1.
A CORNER ALLOTMENT, having 35 feet frontage to CROWN-STREET, and 90 feet frontage on the south to a street (20 feet wide) leading from Crown-street to the waterside allotments.
LOT 2.
A CORNER ALLOTMENT at the rear of lot 1, and adjoining it, having 35 feet frontage on the west, and 90 feet on the south to the street (20 feet wide) leading from Crown-street to the waterside allotments.
LOT 3.
35 feet frontage to CROWN-STREET by a depth of 90 feet.

This allotment is bounded on the north by the Australian Agricultural Company's Wharf and premises.
LOT 10.
Seventy-six feet frontage to the street (already described) leading from Crown-street, by a depth of about 130 feet to deep water, with a frontage of upwards of 76 feet to DARLING HARBOUR.
 This allotment is bounded on the south by the premises formerly known as "Duke's" and lately as Boyd's Wharf.
☞ The water side allotments are of great importance, as from the depth of water alongside, they form most valuable sites for Wharf Premises; whilst a more desirable spot cannot be had for private residences than is offered above; for Miller's Point may be said to be almost out of the city, so little is it disturbed by the constant traffic to which other portions are exposed, and yet it is within a convenient distance of any part of Sydney.
THE TITLE IS GUARANTEED;
It may be inspected at the office of Messrs. Dunsmure and Longmore, Solicitors, Bligh-street.
TERMS—LIBERAL.
20 per cent. cash deposit; the residue, by approved bills at 4, 8, and 12 months, dated from day of sale, and bearing bank interest. 7181

WEDNESDAY, 30th APRIL.

A VALUABLE ESTATE AND HOMESTEAD—"SANDAL FARM."
On Prospect Creek near Landsdowne Bridge, on the Liverpool Road, and within seventeen miles of Sydney, and three miles from the Town of Liverpool, containing 160 acres of land.

MR. SAMUEL LYONS
Is instructed to sell by public auction, at his Mart,
On WEDNESDAY, the 30th day of April,
At 11 o'clock precisely,
ALL those 160 Acres on the Banks of Prospect Creek, situate near the junction of the Liverpool Road with the Dog Trap Road, at Landsdowne Bridge, within seventeen miles of the city of Sydney and three of Liverpool.
To give any thing like an adequate description of this really valuable and romantic spot would far exceed the limits of a newspaper advertisement, and the Auctioneer is reluctantly compelled to offer only a brief outline of this unique little property.
The Estate, with the exception of a very small strip, consists of excellent light clayey soil, fit for every purpose of agriculture or horticulture, about fifty acres of which have been cleared and stumped, and are under cultivation—forty acres more have been cleared, ten acres are now in a high state of cultivation, and about eight acres of orchard, containing all kinds of fruit trees of the best and rarest description and in flourishing condition; the remainder of the land is capable of the highest cultivation, being now covered with excellent iron bark timber, and would be the very thing for a model cotton plantation.
On the premises there is a dwelling-house, containing five rooms, with detached kitchen, plastered on the inside and shingled. A cottage or garden house, with two rooms, built of slabs and shingled, and an excellent shed, well shingled, capable of containing twelve tons of hay.
The property is bounded to a considerable extent by the Prospect Creek, which here flows in meandering beauty to George's River, which it joins about a mile or two below the farm. The creek abounds with fish of every description, and a never-failing supply of excellent fresh water is close to the house.
Taken as a whole, there does not exist at this moment a more desirable spot, whether to settle quietly down in the calm enjoyment of easy competence, or as a speculation, which, with prudent management, would bring a sure fortune to the fortunate purchaser, and as it will be positively sold, intending prchasers should inspect the premises, and judge for themselves.
THE TITLE IS FIRST-RATE, commencing with a Grant from the Crown, and no quit-rent.
☞ A plan is on view at the Mart.
 For further particulars apply at the Office of Messrs. Dunsmure and Longmore, Bligh-street.
